

The Secret to Writing an Authentic Love Story Worksheet

Hey there!

I'm so excited you read my blog post, How to Write an Authentic Love Story. Love stories are some of my favorite things, and my favorite genre to read and write!

Since you signed up to receive this worksheet, I'm guessing love stories are pretty special to you, too.

I hope this worksheet is helpful to you as you work through plotting or revising the love story you're writing.

I'd love to know how this worksheet helped you and more about your writing project! You can reach me at Rachelle@RachelleReaCobb.com.

Now, on to the worksheet!

How to Use this Worksheet: Read through the post on my blog, How to Write an Authentic Love Story, to get familiar with the secret to creating your own fictional love story. Feel free to take notes in the space below.

Notes:

What is your favorite love story?

Whatever your favorite love story, study it like it's your job. Analyze why you love it so much. Is it the little details? Or is it the big picture? Is it the wondering if they'd ever get together? Is it the knowing they would, even when they couldn't see it?

The secret is this: Add that and your reader will feel as you do. As if... this couple? They've just got to make it. Even if their picnic table doesn't...Take notes below about how you will add this to your novel.
